Ronny van Dyke comes out with a new single "last curtain lullaby"

The wild one becomes melancholic - a serious song tells the story about a man's decision to change his life. He doesn't want to live as a decal of his ideals anymore. The last curtain falls and it is time to try again.

Since 2008, Ronny van Dyke and his Trash Pop Pilots have been celebrating Rock`n`Roll as it should be - simple, loud, sweaty and noisy but seriously deep from the heart. The first great success was the single „Please,Please Love!“ that was „Newcomer of the Week“ on Bayern 3, a German Radio Station as well as „Sleeping Bird“ that was number 1 at the reverbnation.com charts for Germany. The following Album „Rockers`n`Lovers“ was a great success too.

The Band does a lot of live-shows and has been very successful as opener for The Hooters on a great show at Bamberg, Bavaria. The Band members are really chummy and they have a lot of fun on stage. They celebrate a little bit a trashy image with a lot of old and useless things like a big plush pig, great plastic flowers and other kind of rubbish. This obsession gave the band it's name: trash pop pilots. Now the show goes on with another colour added to the painting- „last curtain lullaby“
